MY 32 MONTHS A PRISONER OF WAR IN GERMANY

By
1ST. LT. FRANK M. NEWTON
United States Army Air Corps

We were a sort of novelty to the Italians as this was their first sight of American flying officers in this war. I had never seen so many high ranking Italian officers walking about They were everywhere in the streets, coming as near as our German guards would permit. They were labeled and loaded with bright colored ribbons and medals, tailored grey blouses and shining black boots.

One of the guards spoke understandable English and I asked him why so many of the Italian Generals and colonels were in their home cities and not on the field of battle. He said that this was the best place for them—out of the way. In his opinion the Italian soldier is a good fighter, but their generalship was poor. Evidently there was much truth in what he had said about them.

Our train accommodations from Brendisi through Italy to Germany were first class. I have heard there were some changes made during later months. My last train ride was quite different. The first long stop was in Naples. Lt. Alexander had a serious infection resulting from head injuries and was taken to a hospital outside Naples. I was placed in the finest hotel in Naples (it was the only one the Germans would consider for themselves) and remained in a guarded room for the next week.

The Italian porter came into my room ten times each day to tell me about the work he had done on Pier 52 in New York, Atlantic Steamship Company and asked me to "look him up" after the war. He would get back or die trying. ..(He wouldn't die on the field of battle.) In between his visits, and twice as often, two elderly Italian hotel maids came in to unmake and remake the bed; also to bring fruit and Italian meat roll. I was getting more to eat than my guard, so he finally stopped their frequent and unnecessary visits in the hall, only so far ahead of me to get the ripe grapes and leave me a small portion of the spicy casserole. I need not later mention the recurring mental pictures of these Italian dishes. I found better meals in Cameron.

My room did not face the harbor and the open sea, but it was not an unpleasant location. Street cars, old taxis, horse drawn carts, and army trucks filled the street below. When I grew tired of watching this small cross section of life in Naples, I would sit and gaze upon the column of white, smoky steam over Vesuvius. So long as I could forget the future, and eliminate the thought of sorrow and possible disgrace of the prisoner complex and of losing fine men, in the immediate past, I would not leave this spot. The guard was disciplined by Dardness, and summoned me with clamorous call in noisy obedience to her silent command.

I did not sleep that night. I was tired. I tried to think, then I tried not to think. I wished the train had made a longer stop in Pompeii before passing Vesuvius, because that crazy picture I had seen in the ancient history book kept jumping around, turning and twirling in my head. Then I wished I had made a little more effort in that subject. There should have been no doubt. I had seen the Temple of Apollo, and the old columns of the Civil Forum which were placed there some 500 years before Christ.

In this picture of tossing sleep, I saw airplanes taxi out of old ruins, dodging streams of red-flowing lava. The cannon boomed just as the guard yelled, "Get up, we go to Rome, cross Po, up through Brenner Pass and then Deutchland."

Many minor details are given throughout which may be of little interest to the reader. These, however, are a part of the "Captive Exeperience," and to omit any one of them might leave an impression not intended. I dare "put it to the touch to gain or lose it all."

'Ah!" ejaculated the guard, "the heart of the Roman Empire is pulsating with strong German industry today." I did not fully appreciate this paradoxial statement, but I did see

HOUSING SHORTAGE IN CAMERON IS SERIOUS

Cameron's housing problem was regarded as the most serious in history and right now is receiving attention of business leaders.

So serious has become the situation that one landlord reports a waiting list of 17 for a home which is rental property.

An effort will be made to bring this situation to the attention of the government in the hope of getting an allocation of material for homes. It was pointed out Tuesday night at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce that the manpower supply here is somewhat conditioned on the availability of housing. A large construction job over Little River at present has brought a demand for housing by crew operators who hope to have a share in the bridge building for which the War Production Board has authorized $580,000.

It was estimated by local building trades leaders that more than 100 new homes will be constructed here as soon as materials are available.

There is also a big demand for materials to be used in the construction of business buildings.

If the Federal Housing Administration will authorize needed housing some 25 to 30 units would soon be under construction.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS ARRIVES

W. T. Hanes of Tahoka, new superintendent of schools, arrived in Cameron Tuesday and will not return to Tahoka.

Mr. Hanes will begin his duties as Superintendent of Schools this fall, having been given a contract by the local Board.

At present Mr. Hanes and family are living in an apartment. The housing problem in Cameron is very acute. In a few weeks he hopes to move into the home of the late W. H. Triggs, north of the school campus which he has leased.

Two members of the faculty are unable to find a home. They are Coach Leo Jackson and Dick Young the high school principal. Friends were giving every assistance possible.

MAN POWER IS SOUGHT FOR BRIDGE BUILDING

Available manpower for sonstruction work on the new bridge across Little River is being asked to register with the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced by A. W. McLullin, president.

Due to lack of time and workers to make a canvas, those who wish to be available for employment are asked to register at the Chamber of Commerce with the unit of the United State Employment service.

There is no definite time announcement for the beginning of work on the new bridge. The Chamber of Commerce is volunteering to help the War Manpower Commission determine the available labor supply locally. Before construction can be authorized the manpower situation will have to be made known.

Transfers Due for School Children

Parents who desire to transfer their children from one district to another are reminded that this should be done during the month of July.

The state rates for tuition and for transportation have increased for the coming year.

Elementary tuition $5 per month.

High School tuition $9 per month.

Eelementary transportation $2.75 per month.

High School transportation $3.00 per month.

Children whose grades are taught at home are required to pay tuition for five months if they are transferred, and also pay their transportation for the full nine months. If the grades are not taught in the home district the local district is liable for both tuition and transportation. In the state aid schools the state pays the tuition and transportation if the district does not have the funds.

BRIDGE PLANS CALL FOR LABOR SURVEY

The Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the U. S. Employment Service is making a labor survey in this territory to determine the amount of available labor in this section. All persons who are interested in employment should immediatly register with the U. S. Employment Service, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Plans are being developed for the construction of the bridge across Little River, provided the desired amount of labor, both skilled and unskilled is available in this section. The co-operation of labor in this section will be appreciated by the Chamber of Commerce.

$6450 ASKED BY OPA ON SUITS FILED HERE

The Office of Price Administration is asking $6,450 from eight local merchants growing out of suits filed by the Houston District Office of the OPA.

Amounts sought which are alleged to occur from the sale of eggs above ceiling prices range from $1,050 to as little as $150.

So far no farmer has been accused of selling eggs over the ceiling price.

Some months ago similar cases were filed in the District Court of Milam county on sale of meats. Nothing was done about it. It was pretty safe to assume nothing will be done about the eight suits just field. There can be no vigorous prosecution of such suits locally. Suits filed in federal court might stop violations.

A case now currently talked about originated in Hearne. A meat market sold meat without requiring red points. The business grew sharply and finally the OPA filed charges. The market man was tried and acquitted. Now he is doing a much bigger business without requiring points on meat.

U. S. Employment Office Opens Here

The War Manpower Commission has opened a U. S. Employment Service Office in Cameron located at 206 N. Central it is announced by Darrell Harding, Area Director for the War Manpower Commission. The Cameron Employment Office is in charge of M. H. Nance and is open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. every day except Saturday when it closes at noon.

The primary responsibility of the Cameron U. S. Employment Office is to serve veterans. It is an information center for veterans who are seeking employment or any assistance connected with the G. I. bill of rights. Mr. Nance himself is a veteran with overseas service and is familiar with the rights and needs of veterans.

Applications for work as well as for unemployment compensation benefits are taken at the Cameron Employment Office. It is important that local employers who are seeking workers place their order with Nance. In this way the local employment office will function as a labor exchange serving both workers and employees. There will be a list of current job openings which Nance will make available to applicants, both veterans and other persons. These job openings will be with local employers and in other areas where war workers continue to be needed.

LT. ROBERT C. GANDY WINS THE SILVER STAR

Lt. Robert Gandy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gandy of Bledsoe, Texas, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action in the fighting in Italy. From the Lovington, New Mexico, Leader, the following has reached the Herald and we quote also from the Fort Worth Star-Telegram as follows:

When his company commander was wounded near Carano, Italy, last May 26, Lt. Gandy took charge of an attack against strong German positions. He quickly placed mortars to neutralize a group of enemy machine guns which were firing on his company. Then, from an exposed position he adjusted the mortar fire and refused evacuation when he was hit in the hip, arm, and abdomen. Gandy who received the silver star for his gallant leadership, continued to direct his mortar fire until his company was able to resume its advance.

He then turned the company over to another officer but declined assistance to an aid station saying no men could be spared and walked back until he collapsed from loss of blood. He also holds the purple heart and the combat infantryman badge. He served with the 45th division in Sicily before the Italian campaign.

Two brothers are in service, Cpl. Sterling Gandy who served in the Aleutians, and St. Thomas Ray Gandy, radio gunner on a army bomber, who has been missing in action over Italy since February 16.

Sgt. William Mathews and family visited friends and relatives here last week end. He has been overseas 22 months and after a thirty day furlough will report to South Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Cryer and children of Houston have concluded a 10 day visit with relatives of Val Verde and Cameron.

PLANES NOW LANDING ON CITY AIR FIELD

Cameron's Municipal Air Park is now in use and planes of the small type are landing and taking off from the runways.

The city has spent around $1,000 recently to have stumps removed from the field and considerable cleaning has been done

The runways are graded and are not suitable for the all purpose air traffic to be realized when the field is finally put in shape, but are ample for small type of private plane now seen at the field

The city has a considerable portion of the funds from the $25,000 bond issue and in time contemplated improvements will be made. The field will not accomodate large types of planes. Small planes like the army trainers can land and take off. The problem is the take off. Most any kind of plane might be landed but the take off is the problem

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT WILL NOT HELP US

Texas Highway Department Monday declined to designate the road from San Gabriel to Ad Hall a farm to market road.

A large delegation of citizens from this county headed by Judge Jeff T. Kemp appeared before the commission on Monday to make the plea. The commission told the delegation that all the money had been alloted but that in the event some of the projects already approved fail or if more money is made available consideration will be given.

More than a year ago the Commissioners' Court here was urged to make a survey and file with the department requests for farm to market roads. So far as known to the Herald no survey of the county was made.

Three small projects involving 20 miles have been approved, but may not be built, certainly not in the immediate future.

The national government alloted 92 million dollars to the state for farm to market roads Many counties acted upon the suggestion of the highway department and filed estimates. Many counties failed to do so and are among the also rans.

Here is Mr. Adams telegram: Delighted to quote from official sales report that you have exceeded both E Bond and over all quotas. This is exceptionally fine job. Continue your efforts."

Cpl. Ben H. Kosel With 8th Air Force

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE SERVICE COMMAND STATION, ENGLAND—The Japan of tomorrow was mirrored in the targets of yesterday for Cpl. Ben H. Kosel, Burlington, as he, along with nine other ground crew members of the Eighth Air Force Service Command with whom he has served, flew over devastated Germany in a B-17 Flying Fortress on an eight hour "sightseeing mission" to witness the great part they played in the eventual victory over Hitler's Germany.

From altitudes ranging from a couple of thousand feet to tree-top level in ideal weather, the Fortress skeleton crew and its passengers saw the results of 30 months of intensive strategic bombing The men were all "briefed" on what they would see on the flight over the Ruhr Valley which was once considered one of the most highly industrialized areas in the world. Airmen referred to it as "Flak Valley" due to the very heavy concentration of anti-aircraft defenses

The flight covered approximatly 1,000 miles round trip and the men flew over parts of England, France,

Beer Monopoly Here Heightens as OPA Sets New Ceilings

A beer monopoly was virtually established here Friday with the announcement of classifications among local retail dealers.

The classifications are 2C and 3C. On the whole the system will operate to increase profits from the sale of beer. Certain dealers who have fat quotas can charge more while the 3C dealers who cannot charge as much will get less beer.

The impostion of classifications has further aggravated the beer situation here. Contrary to ordinary consequences as the result of beer selling at two prices there will be no advantage to the dealer who is forced to sell at a lower price He cannot get volume because his quotas are small.

Classifications are arrived at on prices filed as of 1941, and some of the dealers did not file price lists. They now find themselves cut out of the price increase. It was understood the price panel of the Ration Board had attempted to establish a flat 2 B classification over the county but were turned down by the District office.

A 2B dealer can get as much as 3c more on a bottle of certain brands of beer than a 2C dealer There are only three 2B retailers in Cameron.

Quotas fixed for retailers has resulted in certain dealers being favored with large supplies while other dealers have to close for lack of beer. Some of the dealers not given 2B classifications have indicated they will contest the OPA ratings.

Some of the retailers given 2C were not in business in 1941, and therefore could not file a price list.

COACH JACKSON HERE HOPES TO MOVE SOON

Coach Leo Jackson is in Cameron looking for a place to live and was finding the housing situation as acute as it had been represented.

Friends were lending their help and it was believed that the new coach would be able to find a home before returning to Tahoka.

Coach Jackson said early Saturday he was anxious to get settled here and begin work with his boys. He was here a week during spring training and had the largest number of boys out for football in the history of the school.

Cameron's housing situation was the most critical in its history, even worse than during the early stages of the war.

Violation of Ceiling Prices on Whiskey Brings OPA Threat

Violation of ceiling prices on whiskey threatened Thursday to bring OPA action, it was learned from unofficial sources.

It was understood here that evidence, long accumulating, had been made ready. It was also said unofficially that a Camp Hood army officer had filed or would file a complaint with the Cameron OPA office against a liquor store of Milam county. According to information the officer had been charged $12 for a fifth of gallon of Scotch whiskey and that the same whiskey was on sale in Cameron at $10.

The ceiling prices on whiskey are effective in the black market here. Many sales have been recorded in which more than the ceiling price has been charged. A ceiling price list is on file at the local OPA offices. Whether this information is available to the consumer in case he wishes to check up, is not known.

So far as the Herald has been able to learn no action has ever been taken here by the OPA enforcement officials for violations of ceiling prices.

The OPA has been requested several times to adjust rent advances here but so far nothiung has been done.

Paper Pickup Here Wednesday, July 11

Wednesday, July 11th is paper collection day in Cameron, in both the business and residential districts. All merchants and residents of Cameron are urged to collect all scrap paper and card board and place this scrap on their sidewalks by four in the afternoon.

Securely tie all newspapers together, magazines in another bundle and please put all carboard in a separate bundle. Truck drivers are instructed to leave all loose or untied bundles on your sidewalks. It is not asking to much of you to cooperate with us by preparing your scrap paper bundles in the proper manner.

Paper remains one of the critical shortages of the war and you are urged to secure every possible pound of paper around your place.

It has been interesting to the groups making these paper collections that less than one third of the people of Cameron have ever contributed any paper to these drives and to this vital war effort. More than two people out of every three in Cameron have never been interested in this vital war effort enough to collect a small amount of paper once per month. You certainly know whether you have been co-operative—likewise the paper salvage committee also knows who has been doing their part.

much of the German industry inside the city of Rome. Germans were in control of all transportation and communication. Anything of any use or value to the German was under his hand. The Italians demonstrated obedience to discipline rather than love and respect toward their military superiors.

A few moments before the train reached the city I was permitted to stand in the train corridor and get a limited view of the courty-side. The guard pointed out several sites of interest; among which were sections of the Appian Way, a church near this ancient roadway that was constructed some 300 years B. C., and two crumbling amphitheatres. Of the latter metioned buildings, one was much larger than the other. The guard pointed to the broken mass and said "Colosseum." Whether this was the huge amphitheatre built to entertain the Romans with its gladiatorial combats, man against man and man against beast, and seating over 80,000 Romans, I cannot say. The guard was not definite on this point. I tried to visualize some of the contests that took place in the arena as I gazed through the ruins and onto the soil inside. I thought of the howling mob in the stands cheering the stronger gladiator on to victory, filling the bloodstained arena with their cries of sadistic pleasure. Then I know it would not be long until the Nazi Invader and Conqueror would continue his "Super-Slayings" and oppressions of those weaker in military might. I knew it would decay and crumble into ruin as this had done in the years before. I knew that nations with greater and higher ends would rise up and chop off the tyrant's head. The Guillotine of Recompense awaited the Nazi.

On and on, higher and higher, the train carried us, losing the sea behind miles and miles of tunnel, rising into the mountains of Northern Italy. Some of the tunnels, were five and ten miles in length, cut through solid rock Lights inside marked the way. This, I believe is a very fine example of Italian engineering. It was not many years ago that they were noted, not only for their organizing abilities, but for their engineering as well.

I cannot describe the beauty of scenes from the tops of the Alps. There was a little red-topped village in a valley, thousands of feet below; between the veritical line of the train and the village was a mountain stream almost directly beneath; on the opposite side was a shepherd, guiding his flock to the greener spots on the mountainside. One has the feeling that he can reach out and touch the entire picture with a hand. It was a summer ride on a huge roller coaster moving in slow-motion through the Alpine "fairy-land."

We were through the Brenner Pass at midnight of that day. On noon of the next we arrived at Frankfurt-on-Mein. This was the point of interrogation. All of the prisoners of war were sent to Frankfurt at that time, before going out to the main prison camps We were placed in a small room, given a German ration of food, not knowing at the time whether we would spend our entire prison life in that one room. If a man possessed much valuable military information, it was likely that the Germans would keep him at Frankfurt for several weeks. In many instances German Intelligence had already gleaned much information from an American Group through various sources. The only information we were briefed to give was name, rank and serial number. But the German interrogators tried all sorts of sly means to get the facts they were seeking. I shall tell of as many as possible without jeapordizing other prisoners of war.

There were shrewd sleuths representing the German Reich at the interrogation center. They had been at this work for many years, and on this particular job for about three years Picked for the position, and with their past experience with thousands of prisoners, they came to be master psychologists from the standpoint of questioning incoming captives. Physical force and violence were seldom used. Their means of "drawing out the dope" was much more subtle. It was not that they obtained so much information from any one individual, but rather to confirm or disaffirm some small part of sessed. It was their job to sift the military fact which they already posevidence from the opposing witness.

They worked somewhat in this manner: The Ober Leutnant (1st. Lt.) a well dressed and neatly groomed German of about 35 years, entered the room and introduced himself very politely. He was an actor in this sense, and might or might not be sincere. Remember that he had a duty to fulfill for Hitler. He also knew his game and played the part well. He might offer a prisoner the best German cigarette; he might offer him a glass of beer or wine; he might attempt to open a friendly conversation about any subject. Some of the interrogators had studied in the States, and some had lived here for a number of years before the war. One might have found mutual acquaintances in America, as was the case with some of the men. All of them spoke good English.

Some were quiet and smooth in their approach, attempting to crawl like a snake, around the hidden secrets within the prisoner's brain, to poison it with venom of bitter-sweet. From this type the prisoner turned instinctively. Of course if the first interrogator was unsuccessful, another, who was equally adept in other methods, would replace the first at a later time. The prisoner, full of uncertainty and distasteful thoughts of the future might remain alone in his small room for one day or two weeks before another 'Fox' returned to the 'hole.' The only visitor was the guard who came with food. He would say two words: "Essen, Ya," and Appetite would drown Taste.

How did they obtain the answers they were seeking? They didn't. Not by any means. Of course the German Intelligence was well organized and far reaching. You have read of German and Jap methods on this subject, but in the interrogation of prisoners, I know of not a single American soldier who gave the Germans military information while beging questioned at this station. When the "friendly" talk by the Obed Leutnant was tried and had failed, he might offer all kinds of threats of physical force and tell the prisoner that he would remain in the cell until he talked, or that he might go before the firing squad. Superficial friendliness and threats of violence were thrown against the forehead of the captive, only to echo back with the silently growing strength of the Allies, and cut the questioner's probing tongue with a knife of steel,

The next trip was to Stalag Lufe III, a short distance from the town of Sagan, Germany This was the main Luftwaffe Camp for British and American prisoners of war. Sagan is located approximately 90 miles south east of Berlin and is on the same latitude as the southern edge of Hudson Bay. The soil in this area of Germany is comparatively poor. Without much cultivation and fertilization it produces little. The pine trees poison the crop unless they are cleared. I have heard Germans speak of that section as the "pine desert." I was to remain in this one area for two years before getting a walk outside the barb wire, and twenty-nine months before the Russian guns blasted through the snow and ice to Glogau. In January 1945, the Russians brought the Germans to a hastly decision. Evacuate all prisoners.

When I arrived there were hundreds of Britsh prisoners to "greet" me, but only four American Flying Officers The first American Flying Officer prisoner of war was Lt. M. D. Draper of California. He had made our first raid across the channel, being the only survivor of two A-20s shot down on the mission. The second was a tall, slender, red-headed Lt. Col. A. P. Clark of San Antonio. The other two were Lt. Ed Tovrea, Phoenix, Ariz., and Lt. Robert Inghram from Iowa. I shall give you a number of names of different persons throughout the story, and describe some of them to you. I feel that the story would not be complete without them because their experiences were mine, and mine was theirs.

The compound in which I lived for the first seven months was constructed similiarly to that of most other prison camps. Two compounds comprised Stalag Luft III in the Summer of 1942; three more were built to house allied prisoners in following months. The East Compound, where I first met the "reception committee" was laid out in approximately 150 yards by 350 yards. There were eight pine barracks, running lenghtwise in rows of two. The normal personnel capacity of the camp was 650. Before the end of 1944, over 1000 P. O. Ws. were in this compound. The Germans were having housing problems too.

The wire, that held us in and Freedom out, ran in a double row, six feet apart with large rolls of barb wire between. The fences were seven feet in heighth, and on top of the inner fence there was added four strands of barb, leaning inside the camp. Forty feet from the inside fence was a low guard rail which marked our boundary. I believe it very nearly impossible that an Olympic athlete could jump or vault such an obstacle. But we found many other means of escape attempt.

Guard houses were stationed at regular intervals over and above the fence line. There defense were German guards, a rifle and machine gun, and a maneuverable spot light on each box, which brightly illuminated the camp area at night. There were also strolling guards on the outside during all hours. Inside the camp a guard strolled, from dark until dawn, with his Alsatian watch dog, to detect any unsual sounds or movements. During the day, two or more Germans in coveralls (these we named Ferrets) walked about in the camp, prodding the ground in search of tunnels, and disrupting any form of escape activity in which prisoners might be engaged. Some of our "hide-and-seek" games with the Ferrets were most amusing. A prisoner might spend an entire day dodging a Ferret,. leading him off on a cold scent, pretending to be hiding escape material, or covering up for a fellow prisoner, and taking the blue-suited "goon" on a wild goose chase.

But I am getting ahead of myself. The induction process involved a thorough examination of the new prisoner by older men to satisfy the camp that the Germans were not placing a "stooge" in their midst. And the new man was held under suspicion until he had been completely identified. After this test was passed, I was assigned a room As this was a British camp, my seven room mates represented flying officers of almost the same number of nationalities, fighting in the Royal Air Force. There were two English officers one Canadian, two Frenchmen, a Danish fighter pilot, a Norwegian officer, and myself. Four of them had been prisoners for two years when I arrived, and they were as settled, in their life, as a family of Kentucky Hillbillys, English, French and Scandinavian words were leisurely spoken at all times, for anyone to join in on any one of the conversations at will. They offered me a seat, my choice of the bench, the stool or the bed. I chose the bed.

My new friends were very hospitable, and soon made me feel that this was my home too. The Englishmen reiterated some of the points in the Group Captain's talk. The Senior officer gave a short talk to each incoming group, advising them to rest for several months, and to allow proper orientation to follow according to the likes and capacities of the prisoner.

Some prisoners 'find themselves' in a few weeks; other require six months to become acclimated to this new and strange life. Most all of them find something to do to keep themselves occupied. In the ownership of Time, the prisoner is a Millionaire.

Tomorrow I shall define some of the expressive terms used by the prisoners, before I tell you how we kept busy with mind and hand.

Some of the words and expressions used by the prisoners may be of interest to you. Prinsoners of War never spoke of each other by this term. The slur and stigma of the name, 'Prisoner' was not wholly unattached to the prisoner of war. However, I know of no one who was there by his own choice; and I beleve that Society will not brand the prisoner of war with such a complex. If there is any such stigma, it will be there because of the prisoner himself. We took the first sylable of the German word for War Prisoners, 'Kriegsgefangenen', made a slight addition, and called ourselves "Kriegies"—pronounced 'Kreegy.' We were known, in the camp, by this term only. When a new group of prisoners arrived at the gate, the cries of "a new bunch of Kriegies," would welcome the dazed and curious arrivals.

The British coined a new term for the Germans. All German military personnel were known collectively as "Goons." They had taken the expression from 'Popeye,' the comic page. You would be surprised at the number of Germans who had seen or heard of this spinach-eatin' Sailor and his friend Olive. This name did not appeal to them, and they threatened to put a 'Kriegie' on German rations if he addressed them as such.

If the prisoner was caught in an escape attempt, he was taken out of camp and placed in "The Cooler." Insults to the "Goons" sometime resulted in the Kriegie's trip to the 'Cooler' for ten days on the Cooler ration of soup, potatoes, bread, and tea.

The blue-coveralled detectives, who snooped about with flashlights and a long steel rod, were called Ferrets. They crawled under the barracks, punched and dug into the ground, looking for tunnels. One of the Ferrets got a good lesson for his eavesdropping. Some scalding dish water simply had to be thrown away. It was a bit cold to walk outside to the washhouse, so the 'Kriegie' poured it through a large hole in the floor. Could he help the 'error' if the Ferret happened to be under the brackish steam, during clean-up time? The guilty party could not be identified, and no one went to the 'Cooler' on that account.

Another humorous expression, as between prisoners themselves, was "Round the bend." Any time a prisoner was found in some unusual act (all 'Kriegies' did things most extraordinary,) his friend would say, "Hey, are you 'round the bend"? There were very few mental cases in the camp, but an outside observer might scratch his head in perplexing amazement on withnessing some of the proceedings inside the wire. One might walk off to the corner of the camp, sit down on the ground, and read for a while. Just as surely, a passing friend would say, "Hmm, 'round the bend." The statement was given, at all times, in good fun. Another Kriegie might dart out of his barracks, without a stitch of clothing, running and yelling across the snow, going for a nice cool shower. In warmer months you might see one walking around the camp in TWO articles of clothing, a handkedchief trunk and a long-billed cap. I have seen few funnier figures. At the sight of any of these 'crazy' stunts, the echo comes from near and far, "Kriegie Jones is 'round the bend." It is essential that the prisoner keep his sense of humor. It is essentiai that anyone, in any kind of confinement, maintain his sense of humor. It is one of the most effective preventatives, for individuals and communities, against drying up in their own shell.

Fat-Salvage Bee To Aid in Licking National Fat Shortage

It's been ages since we had an old-fashioned "bee" in these parts, but just as we've always pitched in to help a neighbor, so must we pitch in for our country.

To help make hundreds of battlefield and home-front essentials, more used fats are needed than are on hand. City folks are trying to make up the deficit of over 1,200,000,000 pounds. But their fats aren't enough.

Women in small cities, towns and rural districts must also save every drop of fat. Not just big amounts. But scraps off plates, meat trimmings. Melt them down once a week. Your butcher will give you up to 4¢ and 2 red points a pound. If you have any difficulty, call Home Demonstration or County Agent.

Approved by WFA and OPA. Paid for by Industry.

MAKE YOUR IMPLEMENTS DO A BETTER JOB

CHECK THESE POINTS OFTEN
1 Replace worn cultivator shovels and sweeps. A shovel with edges worn 20 per cent will turn only 80 per cent as much dirt as a new one.
2 Replace wood bearings in disc harrows before they damage bearing spools.
3 Keep plow shares sharp. Dull shares may increase tractor fuel consumption as much as one-half gallon per acre.

Plows, discs, cultivators and other implements are just as vital to full production as the larger units of equipment. Don't let them become worn beyond repair. Unless they are kept in good condition they cannot meet the demands of wartime farming.

We have modern facilities for repairing and conditioning implements of all types. When your tools need shop repairs, let us help you. Schedule repair jobs as far in advance as possible to insure having them ready when you need them.

"Murder, He Says" Stars MacMurray

"Murder, He Says" may go into the books as the funniest farce to come out of Hollywood. Opening Thursday at the Cameron Theatre, it has a combination that's hard to beat—Fred MacMurray, as the star with George Marshall directing. Other members of the cast, Marjorie Main, Porter Hall, Jean Heather and Peter Whitney also have a lot to do with the continuous state of unabated hilarity.

Movie-goers will meet a new film family that defies description. The Fleagels rate as the screwiest, looniest, altogether daffiest clan of homicidal hill-billies ever bent on murder. Their unique ingenuity concocts a poison which makes the victim glow like 10,000 watts before expiring. Fred is contiuously occupied with avoiding this and other death-dealing devices. When he finds time to size up his surroundings, he discovers that a certain Helen Walker is a mighty attractive number, despite six shooter and cigar.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 15.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all" (Psalms 103:19.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth" (Rev. 19:6.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The power of God brings deliverance to the captive. No power can withstand divine Love." (Page 224.)

Baileyville Couple Take Wedding Vows

In the presence of relatives and friends the marrige of Miss Florine Ellison and Sgt. Ira L. Burns was consummated in the lovely ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McMillan, June 29, 1945, at 3:30 p. m.

The Rev. Otis Carnes, pastor of the Calvert Methodist Church read the impressive double ring ceremony, before a background of palms and ferns, lighted by tall white tapers in ecclesiastic candelabra.

With the rings, the little five year old niece of the groom, Silvia Ford preceded the bridal couple to the altar. Traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bicker Cain of Calvert, at the organ.

The bride was attractively dressed in a traveling suit of gold with brown accessories, and wore a corage of bronze orchids. The groom was in uniform.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in which Mrs. McMillan was assisted by Mrs. W. R. Greenwood, and by her nieces, Mrs. Bunyan Amen of Groesbeck, Mrs. Ben Burns of Balieyville, Mrs. Oliver Burns of Calvert and Mrs. Guy Ford of Dallas.

The lace covered table, lighted by white tapers held a large bowl of flowers on a reflector in the center. At one end the three-tier wedding cake with it's miniture couple atop, was presided over by Mrs. Greenwood, while at the other end, Mrs. Amen served punch from a beautiful cut glass bowl. Mrs. Guy Ford, twin sister of the groom had charge of the brides book.

After the reception the couple left for Dallas and Great Falls, Montana, where Sgt. Burns is stationed.

Sgt. and Mrs. Burns were reared in the Baileyville section and went through school together, graduating from Calvert High School. Sgt. Burns entered the service and Florine turned to teaching for the duration of the war.

The good wishes of their many friends go with them, with the hope of their early return.

S-Sgt. Stephen Burnett Aircraft Mechanic

AN AIR SERVICE COMMAND DEPOT IN IRELAND—Staff Sgt. Stephen T. Burnett of Cameron, who before victory in Europe helped repair and modify our fighting aircraft, now performs a job just as vital to the war effort.

Serving as an aircraft mechanic at a large storage and experimental station of the Air Service Command, Sgt. Burnett is called upon to help reclaim aircraft parts and equipment, for use against Japan, from battle-weary aircraft of the European air force.

Sgt. Burnett attended school in Jones Prairie and in civilian life was employed as a farmer. He entered the Army September 8, 1941, and has been stationed in the British Isles about one year.

He is the husband of Mrs Jerry Burnett of 915 North Houston, Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Smith and children visited relatives and later attended the carnival at Belton Tuesday.

PHILIPPINES BATLLE DRAWS TO A CLOSE

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced early Monday that the war in the Philippines has ended.

The general who left Corregidor fortress in Manila in 1942, and who said he would return, said early Monday that the reconquest of the Philippines had cost the Japs the most complete disaster in their history. More than 500 thousand Jap dead have been counted in the Philippines since the Americans landed early in 1945.

In addition to the victory on the Philippines the island of Okinawa has been taken and Iwo Jima.

Early Thursday American fighter planes swept over Jap air fields and dared the enemy to come up. The American attack was not challenged. Naval forces are moving up the Mikado's doorsteps and had shelled an island north of Okinawa.

Mrs. N. H. Butts had as recent house guests: Mrs. Lucy Brady of Temple and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith and daughter, Bettye Jo, and their daughter, Mrs Joe Lakey and husband and son, Gordon, all of Austin

Avoid Burning

When cooking most vegetables and many other foods use only enough water to prevent burning—a quarter inch will usually do.

Milano Canning Center Growing

The canning center at Milano is operating on a record breaking basis. From June 18th until July 1st, 30,000 cans had been processed. Aside from the number of people who are employed the program is leading to a pattern of community co-operation and organization that will shape the growing activities of this great farming section.

The center is open to all the women in the community. Each individual brings her own products and does her own work. If she needs any instructions, she will be supervised by Mrs. Vel Wise and Mrs. Ray.

This is one of the most important programs that Milano has ever undertaken, and the town and surrounding community feels greatly indebted to H. H. Pruitt and Mr. Sledge for the promotion of the center.
